HOMEGROWN

BEST OF THE BRITISH ISLES

As the drinks market changes and the factors behind consumer purchasing decisions evolve, we believe that there is a significant opportunity for licensees to grow sales with premium UK products.

Provenance is vitally important to British consumers - UK manufacturing of food products had grown 7% year-on-year by the end of 2017. More than 1 in 2 UK consumers find it important to know where their food and drink come from, and many consumers are willing to spend more on brands that are clear about their origin. 62% of consumers aged 18-24, and 57% of those aged 25-34, prefer to buy British*. This same band of consumers are the most likely to trade-up to premium - 54% of 18 to 34 year-olds either select an up-market drink or are likely to pay to upgrade, this is significantly higher than the 43% UK average. Consumers will also spend more on better products if the service and experience is right. With that in mind, we've pulled out the best of our British offerings below.

Low & No

Fast becoming one of the most exciting and innovative areas of the drinks industry, The Low and No alcohol drinks category is about to explode! With changing perceptions from younger generations who are now choosing to opt for the alcohol free/lower alcohol alternative, together with those who are just choosing to cut back, a demand for more choice has been created.

With 40% of UK consumers making a conscious effort to go without alcohol for long periods of time* and 20% of GB consumers having tried a Low/No alcoholic beverage in the past 6 months there has never been a better time to ensure you have the right offering and a varied choice to meet that consumer demand.

Breweries too have recognised this, and have upped their game when it comes to producing better quality, better tasting no/low-alcohol beers. It's not just about extracting the alcohol, it's about creating a product that has new tastes as well as retaining an element of excitement when drinking them.

Times are changing, so we've picked out below, some of those little gems mentioned above, that we've included in our range for you.

With an increasing number of consumers trending towards 'healthier' lifestyles, Vegan and Gluten-Free options are an increasingly important part of the beer category.

According to the NHS 1 in every 100 people suffer from coeliac disease, and 2% of UK consumers consider a beer being Vegan vital to their purchase decision.

Ensuring there are Vegan and Gluten-Free options as part of your beer range is essential, see below for a few of these options from our Boutique Beers range.
